UK Statistics Authority response to House of Commons Treasury Committee report Counting the Population

The UK Statistics Authority has responded independently of Government to the House of Commons Treasury Committee's recent report Counting the Population (Eleventh Report, HC 183, 2007-08). The Authority's response encloses a detailed account of steps being taken by the Office for National Statistics in light of the recommendations made in the Committee's report.

Parliament is now in recess. The Committee is expected to publish formally the Authority's response in September. The Authority has been granted permission to publish the text of its response.
